JAKE FLEAGLE HUNTED IN S. F.

9 Year Old Boy Confesses To Nineteen County Robberies

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

And this is a tome on buying and operating a new car.

* * * *

First comes the decision that the old car isn't as good as it once was.

* * * *

"Yep," says the head of the house, "we should have a new car—that is if we can afford it."

* * * *

Before long friend wife tells another friend who in turn tells someone else—with the result that automobile salesmen start pestering the head of the house.

* * * *

Before long his resistence weakens, in spite of the fact he keeps telling himself the old car isn't so bad.

* * * *

Salesmen bombard him with new models, new engines, bright nicklework, economy of operation and "just feel the quality of mohair in these seats."

* * * *

About this time friend wife sighs about how beautiful this new Knocker Eight is, and how nice it would be if—and then another sigh.

* * * *

After a mental debate, the head of the house finally surrenders.

* * * *

Then comes that day of all days—when the new six or eight is delivered at the front door—all nice and polished with the bright metal work polished and gleaming in the sun.

* * * *

The head of the house gets into the front seat and his wife, pride oozing from every pore, sits beside him.

* * * *

Then for the first ride—never to be forgotten. The husband remarks upon the smooth way the engine operates and friend wife declares she is "just crazy over those cute little vanity boxes in the back:"

* * * *

The cruise around town, nodding, bowing and waiving to friends, near friends and acquaintances.

* * * *

And then the car is brought back to the garage, carefully polished and stored away.

* * * *

It starts to rains and the head of the house decides that he isn't going to have his new car all splattered up with, so he walks to work.

* * * *

That night the head of the house sits down after dinner and lays out a course of conduct for the car.

* * * *

Oil is to be changed regularly. The car isn't going to be run more than 30 miles an hour. Tires are going to be kept at the proper pressure—and so, far into the night.

* * * *

A month passes. The glitter and glory of the new car has faded away.

* * * *

Oil isn't being changed regularly.. But everyone is happy.

* * * *

The car is driven more than 30 miles an hour.

* * * *

Tires are not kept at the proper pressure.

* * * *

The car is parked out all night.

* * * *

And then a year later the family decides that the should have a new car—that is if they can afford it.

And it all starts over again.

Driver Pays Fine On License Charge

Justice of the Peace Arthur Alstrom yesterday afternoon fined Charles O'Neill, Lincoln, $5 for driving with no license plates.

O'Neill pleaded guilty to the charge explaining he was a Lincoln automobile dealer and was driving the car to that place from the assembly plant.

LAD HELD FOR JUVENILE COURT

MARTINEZ, May 10.—Crimes that have puzzled authorities here the past two months were cleared today when a nine year old Martinez youth confessed to burglarizing or tapping the tills of 19 Martinez business establishments.

According to police reports, the youth has obtained more than $200 from his pilferous orgies.

He was arrested today by Martinez police and is being held in the detention home, awaiting hearing the the juvenile court Monday.

Till Tapped

The boy's arrest followed his tapping of the till of the Green Street garage last week, according to police.

Police say he obtained $19 from the till which he dropped when pursued by an employe of the garage.

Another school boy saw the flight and on his description of the fleeing boy, Traffic Officer R. H. Duke began an intensive search which was culminated with the arrest of the boy today.

Confesses Theft

When apprehended, the youth is said to have confessed to a multitude of robberies before Martinez authorities. Among these was the tapping of the till at the Hedges Garage where he obtained his largest haul, $36.

Other establishments, that according to police, he raided are. The Pioneer Dairy, J. E. Rodgers electric shop, Alhambra Water company, Martinez Motor Parts company, Green Street Garage, Campbell's Grocery, Al Mintzer's battery shop, Wieberts' tire shop, Bay Specialties company, South Gate Service Station and McNamara Plumbing Shop, all in Martinez.

SUGAR TAKEN IN ROBBERY

Police investigation into the robbery early yesterday morning of the Pay 'n' Take It grocery store in El Cerrito, revealed that the intruders had made away with three 100-pound sacks of sugar.

Police declared that the burglars evidently had tried to enter the Western States Wholesale Grocery Supply house next to the Pay 'n' Take It store, as it was discovered they had attempted to cut through the wall into the supply house.

That the culprits were frightened away before completing their job was indicated by a brace and bit, a pinch bar and two saws they left on the floor.

Injunction In Merger Denied

MARTINEZ, May 10.—A formal order denying the application of William Short of Green Valley for an injunction preventing Superintendent of Schools, William H. Hanlon from certifying the consolidation of the Green Valley, and Danville school districts, was today issued by Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie.

Short had attacked the legality of the election on the ground that petitions asking for a vote were not in conference with the law.

Mrs. Roque Named Head Of Nurses

MARTINEZ, May 10.—Mrs. Delia Roque was today appointed superintendent of nurses at the county hospital by Dr. E. W. Merrithew, hospital head. She has been a night nurse at the institution the past five years and will succeed Mrs. Marie Blum who was recently appointed superintendent of nurses at the new municipal hospital.

TROOPS KEEP ORDER IN TEX. CITY; MOODY SCORES RIOTS

SHERMAN, Texas, May 10.—UP—The tread of soldiers on patrol with fixed bayonets tonight echoed through the streets of Sherman, where for almost 24 hours agencies of law were defied by a mob infuriated at the alleged crime of a Negro against a white woman. Quiet had returned to the city, but reminders of the prolonged rule of violence were seen on all sides.

Six officers of the state militia, three privates and seven civilians were under treatment for bullet wounds received in attempts to restore order to the terrorized city. Thirteen alleged rioters, most of them youthful, were in jail, held for the grand jury on charges of inciting violence. Two members of the lynching party were injured.

The charred body of George Hughes, 41, who confessed he attacked Mrs. Rrew Farlow, young farm wife, lay in a Potter's field grave after hanging all night from a tree, a grotesque symbol of the lynch spirit which was abroad.

Burned By Mob

The courthouse, where Hughes was taken for Trial Friday afternoon, and which became the rallying point of the mob, was burned to the ground.

Many homes in the negro section, where the violence apparently played itself out, were burned. Negro shops were littered with destroyed property.

From Austin came a statement by Governor Dan Moody, defining the acts of the lynchers as murder, arson and treason. Governor Moody sent 300 National Guardsmen to the city under the command of Col. L. E. McGee, from Dallas.

The troops still were tense tonight. Word went through the patrols that an attempt would be made after darkness to burn a negro church and make further depredations against the negro settlement from which many had fled their homes and the city.

The troops were reinforced by Rangers under Capt. Frank Hamer. Sheriffs and police from surrounding counties were ready.

Pair Confronted By Burglar Here

Richmond police today were hunting for a burglar who entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Baer, 617 Tenth street last night, and held the couple at bay with his revolver while making his escape.

The Baer family was returning home from the theater.

According to police reports Mrs. Baer was the first to ascend the front steps.

Opening the front door, Mrs. Baer was confronted with a burglar who threatened her with the gun and started down the steps.

Half way down he met Baer whom he likewise threatened with the revolver.

Baer willing to oblige, stepped aside, and the intruder vanished from the yard.

Investigation revealed that the combination of a small safe which Baer kept in his home, had been broken off, and the safe ransacked.

A small grip containing a small amount of money and jewels was missing, according to the report made to police.

Work Starts On Scout Camp Pool

MARTINEZ, May 10.—According to an announcement today, work on the new concrete swimming tank at the Contra Costa Boy Scout camp near Longbarn will be started this week.

The swimming pool will be 30 by 60 feet and the entire interior will be lined with re-inforced concrete. It is expected to have the pool finished by June 16, when camp opens.

GATES W. McGARRAH was named president of the International Bank of New York at a meeting of the directors recently.

NEW RIOTS FEARED AT HINDU FETE

KARACHI, India., May 10.—UP—Through Mohammedan India, where celebrations of the religious festival of Bakr-Id are being held, there was widespread apprehension today over possibility of communal fighting between Mohammedans and Hindus.

The festival is devoted to sacrifices of goats, sheep and cattle. Since the idea of slaughtering the holy animals infuriates the Hindus.

In view of the great tension resulting from the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi and the widespread recent disorders, it was feared the processions might result in many clashes.

British Impose

LAHORE, India, May 10.— The Moslem celebartion of the feast of Idulzuha was held today under British restrictions, imposed to prevent communal disorders in country already nerve-wracked by revolutionary outbreaks.

The day, in the past, has been the occasion for fierce fighting between Moslems and Hindus, and British authorities feared the agitation arising from Mahatma Gandhi's drive for Indian independence might lead to serious disturbances.

The Moslems were asked to make their sacrifice of cooks and goats, which the Hindus regard as sacred, within a definite area, and behind closed doors, to avoid offending the Hindus. The playing of music before the mosques also was forbidden.

Lahore was crowded with police, assembled to cope with any out-

LEADER OF BANDITS SOUGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—UP—An underworld tip led police to stage a raid at an uptown boarding house here today, seeking Jake Fleagle, head of the bank bandit gang responsible for the $200,000 robbery of the First National Bank of Lamar, Colo., during which four men were killed.

The bandit leader was not found, but police received information that he was believed to have gone to Los Angeles.

That the notorious bandit leader had long made visits to San Francisco was said to be well-known in underworld circles, but today definite knowledge came to police of his whereabouts.

Immediately a posse of detectives headed by Detective Sergeant G. McLaughlin, head of the robbery detail, left for the boarding house where Fleagle was believed to be hiding.

With riot guns and tear bombs in readiness, more than a dozen officers entered the house.

A search of the premises failed to reveal his presence, but the manager of the lodgings, when shown a picture of the wanted man, stated that Fleagle had stayed on the premises recently for some time, visiting a girl known as "Miss Pennington."

The girl, now the object of an intensive search, had moved from the building.

Before the girl left, the manager stated, the man believed to be Fleagle had disappeared and was understood to be headed for Los Angeles.

Hope Wanes For Sleeping Woman

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10. — UP—Unconscious for more than 150 hours, hope for the recovery of Mrs. Douglas White, prominent San Francisco club woman, waned today.

A second blood transfusion was resorted to taday in an attempt to save her life.

Ever since early Monday, Mrs. White has lain unconscious at the Children's hospital here. She was overcome by carbon dioxide gas, when a pot of water boiled over, extinguishing the gas flame and asphyxiating her in her apartment.

For nearly six days she has lain in a state of coma. Life has been maintained by a generous administration of oxygen through a tube.

4 RICHMOND BOYS WILL GRADUATE

Four graduates of the Richmond Union high school, Carroll Pitchford, Theodore Malianni, Fred W. Petrich and Ernest Barbieri, will be among the 53 men to be graduated at the 67th commencement exercises at St. Mary's College today.

All have been prominent in school activities, Pitchford being noted for his football, basketball and scholarship records; Petrich for his thesis, "The Production of Standard Oil Products at Richmond; Malianni for his work in social, literary and musical circles, and Barbieri for his scholarship and athletic records.

Petrich is a resident of Giant, but the other three boys have homes in Richmond.

The address to the graduates will be delivered by Most Reverend Archbishop Edward J. Hanna of San Francisco, and Leonard A. Thomas and Edward Smiddy will be the student valedictorians.

Several other Contra Costa county boys will receive their degrees today. They are Edward Smoth of Port Costa, George Ackerman of Antioch, and William De Lacy and William R. Johnston of Martinez.

THIEVES ROB LOCAL STORE

Loot consisting of $100 in cash was obtained by burglars who some time Friday night entered the Garfinkle's store here, according to a report filed with police yesterday.

The robbery was first discovered by Ernest Marcus, manager of the store who found the establishment had been entered through a widow in the rear after the glass had been broken out.

Nothing was reported stolen except the money, according to police reports.

Local Florist Called By Death

NORTH CHINA ARMY IN DRIVE ON CAPITAL OF NATIONALISTS

PEIPING, China, May 10—UP—The northern armies with general Yen Hsi-Shan of Shansi, is attempting to set up a new government at Peiping, claimed today to have opened an offensive against the national government at Nanking with an overwhelming victory.

A commuique signed by Yen, whose chief aid is the powerful "Christian general" Feng Yu-Hsiang, said the Northern troops had virtually annihiliated a crack division of soldiers under Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the governmena at Nanking.

There ware 10,000 casualties an 15,000 prisoners taken in the battle along the Lunghai railway the communique said. The Northern armies quickly followed up the victory by advancing toward the capital at Nanking, Yen said.

The communique described the "complete demoralization" and rout of the Nanking armies, which were said to have surrendered by thousands. The northern troops were from Shansi and from other provinces controlled by Feng. The attack took the forces of Chiang Kai-Shek by surprise.

The communique was not confirmed from other sources, but there has been [illegible] fighting along the Lunghai railway in the last week. The previous battles were of little importance, except to indicate that the two opposing forces were coming together.

Yen and Feng recently announced the establishment of the new northern government at Peiping, declaring their intention of overthrowing Chiang Kai-Shek. Their opposition was directed against Chiang himself, rather than the

Theft Charge Jails Youths

MARTINEZ, May 10.—A request by three youths for a night's lodging in the city jail here, today resulted in their being held for investigation on a charge of assault and theft.

A telegram received from Los Angeles, said by police to have been sent by a former companion of the three boys, accuses John Henn, 21, Edward Houston, 22, and William Bowerman, 21, of attacking Fred Garcia their former companion, in Los Angeles and stealing his automobile.

The four youths were believed by police to have come from New York in Garcia's automobile.

Garcia had telegraphed his parents in the east, asking for money and telling them of the attack of companions and their theft of his machine. Word had also been received from New York that the identity of the young men who had petitioned for lodging was established.

Burbank Aviator On World Flight

BURBANK, May 10.—UP—John Henry Mears, round-the-world record aspirant, left United Airport here today for New York, from where he intends to start his globe-girdling flight on June 1.

The flier will make the trip to New York by easy stages. His first stop will be made for fuel at Wichita, Kans., or Kansas City, the flier announced. His proposed route about the sphere includes stops at Newfoundland, Ireland, Berlin, Moscow, Vladivostock, Alaska and New York.

Federals Hold Can-opener Raid

CHICAGO, May 10.—UP—Federal agents armed with can openers still were engaged today in emptying a carload of canned bamboo sprouts that somehow had changed to potent rice liquor en route from China. The "sprouts" were seized two days ago.

EIGHT DEAD IN FRIDAY STORM

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 10.—UP—Cyclonic storms, brewed in the tornado belt between the Rocky Mountains and the Gulf Coast, have taken a toll of 14 lives, caused injuries to at least 80 persons and did property damage of almost one million dollars the past week. Threats of floods have followed the storms.

Eight lives were lost in Oklahoma last night and today when general storms assumed tornado proportions in scattered sections, dipped from heavily clouded skies.

A storm cellar in which two families took refuge from an approaching tornado proved to be a death trap at Mission City, near here today.

Mrs. Virgil Breedlove, 31, and her son, Leroy 5, were killed and five others injured after an explosion demolished the cave. The blast occurred after someone had struck a match, igniting natural gas that had collected in the cellar.

The injured are not expected to live. They are: Dorothy Breedlove, [illegible] Martha Breedlove, 12; Mrs. Neil Blakely, 49; Sonny Edwards, 5, and Bonny Edwards, 7.

The tornado season was introduced a week ago tonight when a series of twisters rampaged thru the western part of the state. Last night's and today's storms swept through the eastern sections.

Many Storms

During the week a score of storms devastated many sections and apprehension was felt in all parts of the state.

Seven separate storms dipped in over Oklahoma last night and today. The greatest loss of life occurred near Stigler. Rather than leave their son ill in bed to seek shelter in face of the oncoming

FILM ACTRESS DENIES GIFTS

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—UP—Gloria Swanson, the motion picture star, never sent any gifts to adorn the person of the "love temple" of 'Swami" Bantappa Raw, Hindu crystal gazer.

She denied any such action in a vehement and rather annoyed manner as she testified today at the swami's trial on a grand theft charge.

The actress was called by the state to show that his representation of having the friendship of movie stars was false. He assertedly used this representation to bilk Mrs. Adele Allerhand, 30, out of $4600.

Mrs. Allerhand testified previously that Raw claimed many gifts from Miss Swanson.

Did you ever see Bantappa Raw before today?" Miss Swanson was asked.

"No," she answered in a manner that indicated she hoped never to see him again.

"Did you ever give him a lamp for his home, or any neckties or handkerchiefs?"

"Certainly not," she said.

The actress was dismissed from the stand, and Municipal Judge Turney adjourned the case until Monday after threatening Charlie Chaplin, screen comedian, with arrest.

Chaplin, according to process servers, managed to evade the subpoena they carried for him. Unless Chaplin accepts the subpoena before Monday a bench warrant will be issued for his arrest, the jurist said.

Raw alleged a close friendship with Chaplin, the state contends.

Walgren took seond with 17 feet, 10 inches and Boshettci Boschetti heaved the 12 pound shot 30 feet, five inches, to take first position in the unlimited division. He was followed by Degnan with 33 feet, three inches, and Walgren with 32 feet, five inches. In the javelin throw, Boschetti placed first, Degnan second, and Walgren third. Cecil Bowman was the first to cross the tape in the 100 yard dash, and was closely followed by Snodgrass. In the 220 yard run, Bowman again won first honors. Albert finished in second place.

Johnson Scores

In the 130 pound division high jump, Grover Johnson gained the greatest altitude, while Elston Armstrong and Woodrow Snodgrass, tied for second position.

Johnson took first and second places respectively in the 440 yard dash. Johnson and Armstrong also gained first and second honors in the 200 yard dash. In the broad jump, Johson gained the greatest distance—16 feet, eight inches, while Armstrong again finished second with 15 feet, six inches. In the 130 pound division shtt put, Snodgrass earned first place by tossing the 12 pound shot 30 feet, five inches. Clement Cervenka finished second with a distance of 27 feet, one inch. Johnson was third with 24 feet, three inches.

In 110 pound competition, Bill Scarbrough crossed the tape in first place in the 100 yard dash, followed by Tom Toyota. Scarbrough again took first place in the high jump, while Tom Toyota earned second position.

Jerome Waite and Ivan Utter took first and second place in the 100 pound division 50 yard dash. Utter gained the greatest height in the high jump, with Waite coming second.

In the 80 pound competition, Glenn Adams, Harry Bignall, and Merritt Herbst placed first, second and third respectively in the 50 yard dash. Glenn Adams crossed the finishing tape in first place in the 75 yard dash, followed by Harry Bignall and Ed Chrest. In the high jump Glenn Adams gained first place, Merritt Herbst second, and Harry Bignall third. Glenn Adams again took first position in the broad jump with Bignall and Herbst again placing second and third.

The Mono Friendly Indian tribe of the San Pablo Baptist church defeated the Navajoes of the first Presbyterial church in a 440 yard relay.

U. S. BRITAIN GOLFERS TIE IN MATCH

SANDWICH, England, May 10.—UP—Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland Ore., United States Walker cup golfer, and R. W. Hartley, a member of the British Walker cup team tied for first place in the Sandwich gold vase tournament today. Each scored 148 for the two tours of the windswept course and they will play off the tie in an 18-hole match Sunday.

T. A. Torrence another British Walker cup player, took third place with 149 and George Voight of New York and Hon. Michael-Scott of England tied for the fourth place with 150.

Don Moe of Portland, Ore., youngest member of the American Walker cup team, tied for the lead on the morning round with Michael Scott, shooting a remarkable 33-38-72. He slumped badly during the afternoon, taking an 87 to finish in 14th place with a total of 158. G. Von Elm, the fourth American entrant, took eighth place with a 153.

Although the tournament was featured by the presence of Birtish and American Walker cup stars, the results gave no indication as to the outcome of the inter national competition. The Americans obviously were not acclimated and were unable to withstand the rigors of the cold, windy weather.

The youthful Moe suffered from the cold and declared he was "half frozen" during the afternoon. Although he had played the course only once before he shot perfect golf during the first 16 holes of his morning round. During the afternoon he was badly off his game and clearly showed the effects of the midwinter weather.

Willing, a veteran inter nationalist, was little bothered by the cold and wind and played steady golf throughout the day.

Von Elm played brilliantly at times but experienced trouble. On his first hole of the afternoon he dropped his first three shots into the rough and then three-putted the green. On the next hole he again drove into the rough and failed to sink an easy putt.

Voight, who finished two strokes behind the leaders, had miserable luck. He finished the morning round only a stroke behind Moe and Michael-Scott and started out like a certain winner in the afternoon. On the fifth hole, his drive took a bad kick into a shallow bunker and he failed to clear the mound on his next shot.

After making a beautiful pitch to the green on the seventh, Voight ran down a six-yard putt, only to have the ball hop out of the hole. He lost another stroke on the fifteenth when his 20-footer rimmed the cup and rolled out.

Alderman Shot, Woman Dying In Love Tryst

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 10.—UP—Mrs. Marie Riley, 31, widow, was dying today after she shot Alderman J. Russell Sheffield and then attempted to commit suicide.

She told the alderman "Now it's time to say your prayers," then fired at Sheffield twice as he attempted to run away through the back yard of her home. Mrs. Riley then shot her herself in the abdomen.

At the St. Mary's hospital, where both were taken, it was said Mrs. Riley probably would die, and that Sheffield would recover.

The alderman told police he had been to the Golden Gloves boxing contest last night, and then went to a party with Mrs. Riley. The two went to the widow's home early this morning in a taxi and then he dismissed the taxi and escorted the woman into her home.

Sheffield, who is married, is under indictment on a bribery charge arising from the city council graft investigation, and was chosen in 1928 as alderman to succeed his father, the late George S. Sheffield. Sheffield, it was charged, paid $500 to former Alderman Louis N. Ritten in an attempt to influence his vote in wire department supply purchases.

SUMMER RACES SEEN FOR L. A.

LOS ANGELES, May 10.—UP—A summer racing meet to be started off with a fancy Fourth of July holiday card will be held at Agua Caliente, famous Mexican pleasure resort below the San Diego border.

The horses will run for 60 days according to Harry M. Pollock, publicity expert for the resort. There will be seven races per day, with three purses of $500 each, three of $6000 and a $1000 handicap race.

The program was decided upon by Wirt G. Bowman and James Crofton, who control the destinies of Agua Caliente. The July 4 to Sept. 1 series was taken to indicate Bowman and Crofton were highly pleased with the response of crowds to the winter card.

The winter race program, especially the weekend events and the holiday feature numbers drew heavy patronage from the United States.

Visitors from all parts of the world who were wintering in southern California, many movie celebrities from Hollywood, and all-year round residents of San Diego, Los Angeles and other California municipalities were drawn to the Agua Caliente oval by the colorful attractions offered at the restort.

The present plan for the summer races includes a number of feature events, it was said. There will be at least one stake race with $3000 added, during the period, and extra handicap races will be held on Sundays.

Corey Nine To Meet Kelly Team

The Kelly All Stars, formerly the El Cerrito Merchants, will oppose the Corey Garage nine today at 2:30 o'clock on the El Cerrito diamond.

This is the first game of the present season for the Kelly aggregation. The Coreys have been playing consistent ball during the spring months and are expected to make it pretty hot for the Kellys on the El Cerrito field today.

Brendall will start in the box for the Corey outfit, with Griffin receiving.

The Corey lineup for today will probably include:

Chambers, lf; R. Brendell 2b; Gason 3b; Baldwin 1b; H. Brendell, p; Griffin c; Martell, rf; Klatt cf; Matter, ss.

"Dry" Swim Pool Used By College

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 9.—UP—Brown university now possesses a dry, outdoor "swimming pool" where diving candidates for the swimming team practice as long as they want without the chills that accompany workouts in wet, indoor tanks.

The "pool" consists of a mound of sand and a diving board.

Of course, the athletes are limited to those dives in which they land feet-first.

When Fred Brace, former New England diving champion, christened the outdoor "pool," he forgot about the sandy surface after springing into the air and landed hands-first, burying his head and neck in the fine sand.

Flappers Ruled Out As Wives

GLENDALE, May 9.—UP—Qualities necessary in a mythical all-star married couple from the congregation of the Glendale First Baptist church have quite staggered the selective powers of the Rev. Dr. J. W. Brougher Jr.

A questionnaire distributed among the young people recently revealed that flappers are off the 1930 matrimonial list. The boys would have "it" in their prospective wives, and prefer good looks, but the ruling quality was adeptness in culinary arts.

The maidens ruled out liquor. A few were willing to reform husbands addicted to liquor, but all preferred 'em sober at the start.

Elks Golf Tourney In Second Round

The second round of the Richmond Elks' annual golf tournament is being played this weekend.

RICHMOND NET TEAM WINS CONTESTS

Jimmy Hurley, Richmond net sensation, yesterday qualified to enter in the north coast California Interscholastic Federation tennis tournament next Saturday, by winning in the first division of the Alameda County Athletic league tourney in Berkeley. Hurley, Richmond union high school's leading tennis athlete, defeated Smith, of Berkeley high school, 6-4, 6-3, in the semi-finals yesterday, and then defeated Reinhardt, of Piedmont, 6-2, 6-3.

The Richmond union high school net squad carried off many honors at yesterday's A. C. A. A. tournament at the Berkeley Tennis Club courts, winning three out of five matches in the semi-finals, and winning three out of three in the finals.

Yesterday's competition was divided into five sections. Hurley was Richmond's representative in the first division; Phil Carlin fought for Richmond in the second section; Darrow Sutton in the third; Avila in the fourth, and Newman in the fifth.

Carlin Wins.

Carlin qualified in the semi-finals by defeating Pilcher of Piedmont 8-6 and 6-2. In the finals, he conquered Greeson of Hayward 6-0 and 6-4.

Sutton lost to Butler of Piedmont in the semi-finals by a score of 2-6 and 3-6.

In the fourth division semi-finals, Melvin Avila of Richmond defeated Ackley 9-7, 5-7, 6-2. He then trounced Hayner of Piedmont 6-2 and 6-2 in the finals.

Newman Defeated.

Adrian Newman of Richmond lost to Knight of Berkeley 0-6, 2-6 in the fifth division semi-finals.

The Richmond team drew a bye at the beginning of yesterday's tournament, thereby gaining the entrance to the semifinals without the necessity of playing many matches.

The local boys showed that they have probably the fastest tennis squad that ever fought under the navy red and blue colors of the Richmond union high school. The present team is being coached by Clifford Fallon, who has seen several years' service with the high school net aggregation.

The Richmond union high school team has yet to lose its first set of the season to a high school outfit. It has only suffered defeat at the hands of the University of California freshmen, who complimented the local athletes on their fine playing.

Elk, Odd Fellow Baseball Squads Meet Here Today

The Odd Fellows and Elks of Richmond will be rivals this afternoon on the first street diamond at 2 o'clock.

The Elks will commence their baseball season of 1930 today when they tangle with the Odd Fellows, who have already seen action in several victorious games this year.

Both Elks and Odd Fellows have shown themselves worthy as baseball players in former seasons, and are expected to provide plenty of excitement to Richmond baseball addicts today at the First street lot.

Perricone will start twirling for the Elks, while "Swede" Jensen will be behind the platter for the Elk nine. Kamb will occupy the mound for the Odd Fellows, with Gualdoni receiving.

Senator Avoids Dry Question

WASHINGTON, May 10.—UP—The prohibition question was studiously avoided by Representative J. E. Masterson in his keynote address to the republican Whatcom county convention here today but he attacked the primary law.

Advocating a change in the primary laws which would permit endorsement of candidates and policies, he declared that the present statute was leading to the destruction of both major parties.

Stockton Team Seeks Game With Local Elks Nine

The Richmond Elks nine may meet the Sterling Pump ball club of Stockton on the local diamond soon, it was learned today. Dan Alley, catcher, and Elmer Hansen, outfielder, of the Stockton aggregation, were former Richmond players, belonging to the Refinery team of the Standard Oil Twilight league.

31st and Clinton. Sunday school at 9:45. F. J. Stark, superintendent. You are invited to attend this neighborhood Sunday school.

GRACE LUTHERAN CHURCH

Thirteenth and Barrett.
Under the direction of E. J. Evans, the Bible school convenes at 9:45 for a profitable hour of lesson study and song We aim to build a real Christian foundation in the lives of our little folks. As a suggestion to the parents, we say, why not bring the children instead of sending them. Your presence would prove encouragement to them and an invitation to the children to attend.
"Eternal Joy" will be the theme of another of those most helpful addresses brought to us each Sabbath morning by Rev. E. O. Hoffmeister. He will also give his usual happy talk for the especial benefit of all the children who attend.
Rev. Hoffmeister is not only a good preacher, but he is also a singer of no mean ability, and those who attend tomorrow will have the great pleasure of hearing him sing. His solo will be "The Earth is the Lord's" by Frank Lynes.
We all know that Easter is past but why let that fact interfere with out attendance at the House of Worship. Our church doors are open, our choir in its place, our pastor ready with his message, and it only awaits your co-operation to make these weekly services the great blessing we want thm to be.

Christian Science Lesson Subject

"Adam and Fallen Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-sermon Sunday, May 11, in all churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprise the lesson-sermon includes the following from the Bible: "And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid because I was naked! and I hid myself. And he said, Who told thee that thou was naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat?" (Gen. 3:19-11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Above error's awful din, blackness and chaos, the voice of Truth still calls: 'Adam where at thou?' Consciousness, where art thou? Art thou dwelling in the belief that mind is in matter, and that evil is mind, or art thou in the living faith that there is and can be but one God, and keeping His commandment?" (P. 307).

Local Church In Break With Aimee

BILL BOYD IN CROOK, POLICE TALKIE HERE

Although the two hunderd odd pounds of Ernest Torrence, distributed over six feet three and a half inches of brawn and muscle is usually seen on the screen in rough tough, villanious—and humerous—characters, this well known actor is one of the most cultured and gifted artists in motion pictures.

Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1878, Torrence received his education in three different countries—at Edinburg Academy in Scotland; Stuttgart Academy in Stuttgart, Germany, and the Royal Academy in London, England. He is a thorough musician and has composed many fine musical things.

For twenty years, before entering pictures, Torrence appeared on the stage, mostly in musical productions. Among his outstanding hits were "The Emerald Isle," "The Only Girl" and "The Night Boat." Since deserting the stage for the screen he has to his credit such outstanding performances as those in "Tol'able David," "Ruggles of Red Gap," "West of the Water Tower," "The Side Show of Life" and "The Covered Wagon." These are but a few in as imposing a list of screen achievements as is credited to any character actor.

Torrence has his greatest opportunity since the advent of talking pictures in "Officer O'Brien," a Pathe picture starring William Boyd, in which he plays a humorous old crook and the father of Boyd, and which will be seen and heard at the Fox-California theater today and tomorrow. Others in the cast are Dorothy Sebastian, Clyde Cook, Arthur Housman, Russell Gleason, Paul Hurst, Ralf Harolde, Tom Mahoney and Toya Fujita. It is an original story by Tom Buckingham, directed by Tay Garnett.

Also on the program is Fox talking News and Our Gang comedy entitled "When The Wind Blows."

Charles Farrell Janet Gaynor In New Talkie Here

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell make their debut as ukele strummers extraordinary in "High Society Blues," Fox Movietone romantic romance, coming Tuesday to the Fox-California theater.

Neither Miss Gaynor nor Farrell ever have had a musical "double" and they made no exceptiones when called upon to play ukeleles.

Miss Gaynor took a course of "uke" lessons from the greatest native teacher on a recent trip to Hawaii.

Miss Gaynor sings four songs and Farrel sings five. The musical score was written by Joseph McCarthy and James F. Hanley. McCarthy is co-author of "Rio Rita," "Irene" "Kid Boots" and many other famous productions; while Hanley has written scores of popular song hits.

The director, David Butler, also directed the Gaynor-Farrell team in "Sunny Side Up."

Others prominent in the cast include William Collier, Sr., Joyce Compton, Hedda Hopper, Louise Fazenda, Lucien Littlefield, Brandon Hurst and Gregory Gaye.

MILLIONAIRESS PAYS WAGER DEBT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—UP—That Marion Hollis, former New York society girl and one-time women's golf champion, had dreams and hopes of earning more than one million dollars, was disclosed today.

The dream came true this week when the Honolulu Consolidated and the Standard Oil company of California, purchased the Kettleman Oil company. The price was in excess of $10,000,000, and Miss Hollins' share was $2,500,000.

Today Miss Hollins spent $50,000 of the money in paying wagers made several years ago. Eric Pedley, Pacific coast polo star, received $25,000 and an unnamed woman friend received a like sum.

The trio, a few years ago, had agreed that the first person to possess one million dollars, should pay the others $25,000.

Payment of the wagers, however, has been the only break in the usual channel of Miss Hollins life since receiving the Kettleman Hills money.

She came to Pebble Beach, on the Monterey Peninsula, six years ago and entered the real estate business in an effort to regain the family fortune which disappeared during the hectic days of the war.

Laying out golf courses was a profitable sideline to the real estate business, and Miss Hollins profited by her experience as a golfer.

Not only is the fortunate girl continuing with her work, but friends say she has ambitious plans for branching out on a bigger and more extensive program. Other offices of the Hollins Real Estate company will be opened, and financed by oil money, it is said.

Just now Miss Hollins is completing her contract with the Pasa Tiempa Club of Santa Cruz, a resort city near San Francisco. She could, easily enough, pass the contract on to someone else, but chose to finish it herself, just as she intends to carry on with all phases of her business.

The development of Kettleman Hills, probably the world's richest oil field, is an interesting part of Miss Hollins' career. When the Marland Oil company failed to interest major concerns, Miss Hollins went to New York and interested capitalists in the field's exploitation.

It is said that approximately $100,000 was invested, and that this sum brought the lucky ones more than $10,000,000.

Miss Hollins has always insisted however, that the selling of real estate was her business, and that oil was merely a sideline.

Real estate failed to bring in the million Miss Hollins wanted, while oil did. Real estate, her first choice in commercialism, remains her choice as a life vocation.

Mother Slays 3 Tots, Kills Self

CHICAGO, May 10.—UP—Mrs. Albino De Rorre, widow of a World War hero, was found dead with the bodies of her three slain children at her home here today.

Police broke into Mrs. De Rorre's home after the milkman on his usual morning call failed to arouse anyone there.

Mrs. De Rorre's body was lying between two beds. On one of the beds were her two small boys, both of whom had been shot to death. In the other bed was her little daughter, her throat slashed with a butcher knife.

Police believed Mrs. De Rorre suddenly became deranged during the night and took the lives of her children before shooting herself.

Oakland Man Held On Peace Charge

Following an alleged bursting of a "stink bomb" in a local theater last night, William A. Green, 35 of 1345 Sixty-first street, Oakland, is today held in the city jail in lieu of $100 cash bail.

According to police reports, Green is alleged to have burst a "stink bomb" in the theater, which forced the majority of the patrons to flee from the theater.

C. M. T. C. Still Has Vacancies

While many applications have been received for attendance at the Citizens' Military Training Camps to be held in the Ninth Corps Area this summer there are still vacancies for the camps to be held at Del Monte and Fort Winfield Scott, it was stated at headquarters, of Ninth Corps Area today.

Quotas are assigned by counties and although some counties in the state of California have more than filled their quotas those in the San Francisco bay district are below the required number. County quotas are assigned in order to give proper representation throughout the state, but where any county falls below its quota other counties are given an opportunity to send additional members. Eligible young men of the east bay district should therefore submit their applications without delay in order to make certain of being accepted.

Elephant, Star Become Friends

Frank Merrill, and "Tantor" the elephant struck up a warm personal friendship during the filming of "Tazran the Tiger," Universal's thrilling sound seria', the first chapter of which will be on the screen of the Richmond theater today. The part of Merrill as "Tarzan" called for him to make use of the elephant in many stirring sequences of the picture. "Tantor" becomes so attached to the master of the jungle that he went to his aid on several occasions of his own accord. On one occasion he reached down his trunk to help Merrill out of a pit. On another Merrill, while riding on the elephant's back swung into a tree by means of a jungle vine. "Tantor" halted in great surprise and refused to go on until he had seen where Merrill was. Natalie Kingston plays the heroine in this thrilling picture, which was directed by Henry MacRae. The film is based on Edgar Rice Burrough's famous novel 'Tarzan and the Jewels of Opar.'

Reginald Denny in "One Mysterious Night" will be the all talking feature picture.

20 CHRYSLERS PURCHASED BY N.Y. POLICE

New York, the world's largest city, boasts a police force of more than 18,000 men that is second to none. Everything has been provided to give this alert army all the training and equipment needed for all branches of the service to patrol the city and combat organized crime. The latest weapons, the fastest motor cars, even airplanes are necessary for the constant war on lawlessness. A police college with 2000 students is maintained where experts in all lines are trained.

One of the most important branches of the college is the motor transport school where more than 1800 men are enrolled. The course covers everything that should be known about the handling of equipment and repairs. In the ten weeks' training of three and one-half hours each week, the department cars are taken apart and reassembled. Lectures are given on each component part, pointing out the functions each part fills in the operation and performance of the car. Motion pictures are used to illustrate other features.

Chrysler Bought

Twelve Chrysler "70" sedans were recently added to the motor fleet of the police department, and cooperating wit hthem in every way, the Chrysler corporation has detailed representatives to the Motor Transport School to instruct the men on the use and operation of these latest models, according to Harry Curry, local Chrysler dealer.

Equipment placed at the disposal of the police department by the Chrysler corporation and other motor car manufacturers has been most helpful in making this body of men the finest trained motor transport unit in the world. The equipment of the school includes all types of motor units used in police work. Not only the complete car, but models of the chassis and engine have been cut out to show the construction and operation of the various parts.

This knowledge of automobiels helps the police department in many ways. In the first place, police cars, trucks and motorcycles are maintained at the highest operating efficiency, and graduates of this school become experts in identifying the pecularities of the cars they are called upon to examine in line of duty. Another important result of this training has been the material saving in the cost of operation of cars for lubrication andserved by this institution.

mechanical details are checked regularly.

Police Students

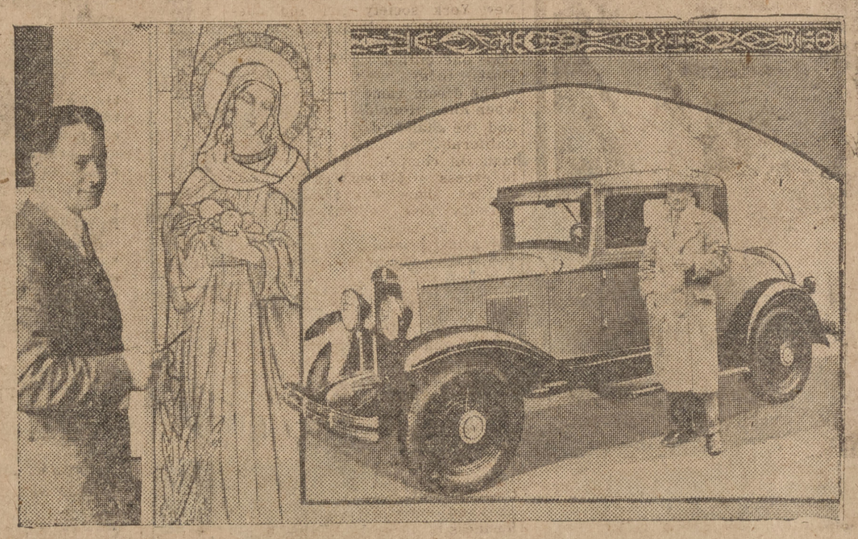
In the eleven schools of the Police College, 2000 men are registered for instruction, the Motor Transport school being the largest. The alumni of this unique college constitute one of the most interesting bodies of men in the world. Through the microscopic examination of a bullet, some can tell every characteristic of the gun that fired it, and if the gun is found can positively identify it as the weapon that fired the missil.

Others are experts in traffic and the complicated problems developed by the travel of millions of vehicles and pedestrians through the streets of the city. Among the graduates of this college are men who have specialized in finger prints, gangsfers and gunmen, crime prevention, the drug problem, the gathering of evidence, horsemanship, law, marksmanship, aviation and other phases of police work.

There is a vast organization behind the patrolman on his beat or the detective who lurks in the shadows of a great city. This organization can not hope to operate smoothly without efficient training, and hence the police college.

The motto of the college is: "Enter to Learn—Go Forth to Serve," and with the equipment and instruction at the disposal of the police force, the citizens of the world's greatest city are better served by this institution.

Paints With Glass



ANTON GERZA REZ, internationally famous artist, architect and stained glass window designer is shown here in his studio. At the right he stands beside his new Chevrolet sport coupe.

CHEVROLET SIX PRAISED BY ARTIST

From the peace and quiet of an Italian cathedral where he was studying ancient manuscripts, mosaics and color effects, to the crash and roar of the Russian front during the World War.

From post-war Hungary, in the violent throes of revolution, around the world through India, China and Japan to America, where he is now a famous architect, artist and stained glass expert.

These are two important steps in the eventual life of Anton Geza Rez, of Czeco-Slovakia, in charge of the stained glass department of a widely known Pacific Coast paint and glass concern. Rez is now an American, who belives in American customs and policies and who contends that Americans as a nationality are highly appreciative of genuine art in all of its phases, whether it be represented in paintings, music, buildings, automobiles, wearing apparel or any other subject in which art is exemplified.

Interested In Cars

Rez is very much interested in modern motor cars, not only from the standpoint of a creative artist and designer but from a utilitarian angle as well. He recently purchased a Chevrolet Six sport coupe, according to Connell and Shumate, local Chevrolet six dealers.

"The color combinations employed in this car are extremely harmonious and pleasing to the eye" said Rez when questioned concerning the reasons for buying that particular automobile. "It is a most excellent combination of beauty and utility. Not only is it pleasing to the eye, but its proved economy is also attractive, as you might say."

Some time after reaching America from the Orient, Rez established the stained and art glass department for his firm. His studio is one of the most interesting of its type in the West.

Art Student

Rez is a graduate of the University of Budapest and is a student of literature, art and science He is an authority on ancient manuscripts, medieval architecture and designing and has won recognition throughout the world for his beautiful color work, especially as it pertains to glass.

At the outbreak of the World War he was in Italy, visiting the many churches and cathedrals of that country, where he studied the methods and systems employed by the old masters who had designed them. He was especially interested in the stained glass windows that adorn them and which are regarded as among the finest in the world.

From this peaceful pursuit he was recalled to the army of Austria in which he held a commission. Followed years of frightful experiences in the fierce fighting on the eastern front. Twice Rez was taken prisoner by the Russians, but both times escaped through the lines to his own trenches. His life at one time was saved by a Russian officer. Rez was lying seriously wounded from a bayonet thrust and the Russian prevented three private soldiers from killing him as he lay, unable to defend himself. He is the possessor of many decorations for gallantry.

Designs Glass

Rez has designed and installed the art glass in dozens of huge office buildings, churches and homes throughout the west. He says that the scenery of the west is extremely inspirational and that many ideas for designs have been developed by him that had their origin in West Coast scenes.

The tower effect in modern buildings is by no means new, he point out. In fact, the architectural style of medieval times was distinctly toward towers, Rez contends. Modern structures are a variation of this style but fundamentally do not differ materially from it. In other words, he explains, the modern office structure is architectually hundreds of years old. The modern combination church-hotel or church-office building presents a most interesting development in buildings, according to Rez. Such structures reflet the American tendency. They are a combination of beauty utility and originality, he says.

1929 Sets New Record For Auto Output

Production of motor vehicles in the United States during 1929 totaled 5,358,316 passenger cars, taxicabs and trucks, according to figures reported by the California State Automobile association.

This figure compares with 4,358,759 for the preceding year, establishing a new high record output, United States department of commerce reports show.

The output of passenger cars for the year amounted to 4,586,020 as against 3,821,136 in 1928, while the production of trucks increased from 530,910, to 754,752 in the same period. A notable development was the production of taxicabs, which increased from 6,713 in 1928 to 17,589 in 1929.

While the output of passenger cars last November and December took a sharp decline, the monthly average for 1929 was greater than in any previous month in the history of the industry, it is stated.

MEMORIAL TO PARK HEAD PLANNED

A nation-wide movement to create a fund for a suitable testimonial to the accomplishments of the late Stephen T. Mather, former director of the National Park service, is under way, according to an announcement from the California State Automobile association. Mather died shortly after he had been forced to retire from the park service because of ill health. He had unselfishly devoted his time, money and energy to building the federal chain of national playgrounds during the past 14 years and the memorial movement had been started prior to his death.

The plan is to secure a fund of $150,000 for a testimonial in Yosemite valley to Mather's work in the development of the national parks on a high plane of public usefulness. It was in Yosemite where he first became interested in the national park idea and Yosemite was the scene of his earliest efforts in national park development.

Two suggestions have been made as to the form of the Mather memorial. One contemplates the erection of an entrance gateway at Tioga Pass commemorating Mather's part in the purchase and donation to the government for public use of the scenic Tioga road. The other is the erection of a Stephen T. Mather chapel and community house in Yosemite valley.

The board of directors of the California State Automobile association has officially approved the nation-wide plan to pay tribute to Mather's work. Contributions will be received at the Association's headquarters, 150 Van Ness avenue San Francisco, and transmitted to the National Stephen T. Mather Memorical committee, Washington, D. C., whirh is headed by John Hays Hammond.

Bridge Traffic Estimate Made

Nine million persons are expected to use the new Ambassador bridge between Detroit and Windsor, Canada, during 1930, according to estimates received by the California tate Automobile association.

CARS AND TAXES

Two men own automobiles for every one paying income tax, according to the California State Automobile association.

European Travel Lures Motorists

Europe continued to draw a large quota of American tourists during 1929. Preliminary figures reported to the California State Automobile association indicate that approximately 425,000 tourists traveled abroad and spent in excess of $600,000,000.

There were around 5000 automobiles shipped abroad and foreign travel was on the whole up to par when compared with 1928 and preceding years. In addition, there was new evidence that motor transportation is on the increase in the Old World and thousands of cars were rented by Americans in every land.

Swim In Rubber Latest Beach Fad

IOWA CITY, Ia.—Patent on a rubber swimming suit which dries quickly and permits its wearer greater freedom in the water, is being sought by David Armbruster of the University of Iowa swimming team.

Five Ignition Troubles Told

There are five possible explanations for the failure of current to reach the coil, states L. G. Evans, general service manager for the National Automobile club. They are a loose connection, which is the most common, a broken wire, defective switch, dead battery or a poor ground connection.

Carbon Not Only Cause Of Knocks

Even though carbon has been removed from your car and bearings are in good condition the motor may continue to knock. According to the California State Automobile association a few of the causes may be: Spark, lean gasoline mixture, loose wristpin, or loose piston.

Many motorists waste money having motor bearings taken up when they should be replaced, according to the California State Automobile association. It is better to select a reliable mechanic and allow him to check crankshaft and bearings and advise what repairs are best.

U. S. Gasoline Use Increasing

Gasoline is being consumed in the United States at the rate of 1,218,000,000 gallons monthly, according to figures issued by the statistical department of the National Automobile club. This represents a gain of 16 percent over 1928.

Dash Light Bulb Will Fit Tail Light

If the tail light bulb on your car is burned out it can usually be replaced with the dash light bulb, according to the California State Automobile association.

Close Choke After Engine Starts

The choke on your car is intended to make starting easier, it should be closed as soon as the motor begins to warm up, advises the California State Automobile association.

Wipe Water From Battery Terminals

If water is spilled on top of the battery when the cells are being filled, wipe it off immediately, advises the California State Automobile association. Unless this simple step is taken, the water will cause the terminals to corrode.

Mild Soap Essential For Top Washing

Top fabrics should be washed with none but the mildest of soaps, warns L. G. Evans, general service manager for the National Automobile club. Soaps containing any appreciable quantity of lye or strong solutions will probably cause cracking.

Chrysler Speed is Smooth Speed — 795

YOU MAY NEVER once drive your Chrysler at its greatest speed.

Whether you do or do not, the power that gives Chrysler cars their speed ability of 60, 70, 75 and even 80 miles an hour, automatically makes a Chrysler the most fascinating car to drive at the ordinary touring speeds.

The power that makes Chrysler's swiftness possible also makes Chrysler pick-up so marvelous — a snap and alertness you have never known in any other automobile. It is this tremendous reserve of power, too, that enables you to maintain your normal driving speed without effort to the car or fatigue to you.

Because of the high speed capacity of Chrysler cars, you thrill to the suppleness with which you can whisk your way through traffic; you welcome hills — the steeper the better — just for the joy of climbing them.

One drive in a Chrysler tells you why Chrysler owners are the most enthusiastic motorists under the sun.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

School and College, Girls and Marriage

PROBABLY the first fallacious argument—well over fifty years old—against the higher education of women in the United States was that it would spoil them as wives and mothers. Yet now modern women of intelligence—educated themselves and with daughters being educated—must again listen to this charge, exhumed from the moth-balls and waved to the spring breezes by Dr. Frederick G. Bonser of Teachers College. Faculty advisers, deans of girls, high school and college teachers, according to Dr. Bonser, are fostering discontent with marriage and home life among the impressionable young females under their care.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

Can any woman who knows what most schools and colleges are doing agree with Dr. Bonser? Can any woman agree, who merely knows the modern girl? We doubt it.

In an extremely interesting article in The Evening World, Miriam Teichner has described the fashion in which a sample New York high school, the Washington Irving, intelligently and deliberately makes its girl students home-and-marriage-conscious—its domestic science and family relationship courses, its model apartment where students learn how to manage not only the kitchen but the nursery, its sound emphasis on marriage and a home of the right sort as the happiest life for women.

"We never fail," said Miss Louise Warr, executive assistant to Principal Edward C. Zabriskie, "to hold up the home as the highest possible ideal to be achieved. Many of our girls will have to work. But most of them regard work merely as something to do until they get married. They want love and marriage, and we want them to have it, and we realize that one of the highest functions we have to fill is to prepare them for it."

NOT only in the high school but in the woman's college, girls today receive inspiration and practical preparation for the career of wife and mother. For example, Vassar opens in about two months its regular summer session of the Institute of Euthenics. This institute offers the broadest yet most detailed studies of family life in every respect, with special emphasis on the care of real babies, many of whom will be brought back to the Vassar campus by Vassar alumnae for use as object lessons.

Smith is another woman's college which for years has paid special attention to the educated woman in the role of wife and mother. Besides the regular college courses in family life, there has been conducted in Northampton the Institute for the Co-Ordination of Women's Interests, where college women are trying to work out the best technique for the fullest feminine life; the combination of wifehood, motherhood and some other individual activity.

Both at Smith and at Wellesley, if we are not mistaken, nursery schools for the children of educated women encourage close co-operation between mother and teacher, while emphasizing the importance of childhood and of the best and most intelligent care for it. Finally it has just been proposed, at the University of Chicago, to give a Bachelor of Arts degree in dishwashing, cooking and sweeping—could collegiate fostering of domestic values go farther?

Still another interesting proof of the high ideals of domestic life among college women is the exceedingly low divorce rate among them. Surveys of alumnae made by Wellesley and other institutions offer mathematical confirmation of this fact. The marriage rate among recently graduated classes is considerably higher than it used to be, and is still increasing. Recently, at the New Jersey College for Women, two-thirds of the Freshmen solemnly voted that marriage at graduation from college is preferable to a career. We hope they send an embossed copy of their resolution to Dr. Bonser!

THAT any considerable prejudice against marriage is being developed among girls of to-day by their education seems to us frankly preposterous. But, if any one besides Dr. Bonser is worried about the matter, we suggest two ways in which marriage and motherhood may be "sold" even more effectively to American school and college girls.

First, let men—especially men in Legislatures and on Boards of Education—end the policy of making the way hard for the married teacher and the teacher-mother. In Albany, for instance, only last winter a bill was introduced to bar women teachers in the public schools of New York City if the women have husbands earning $2,500 or more annually.

In Gloucester City, New Jersey, the Board of Education had to be formally ordered to cease discriminating against married women teachers in the payment of salaries. Ten teachers had charged that they were denied increases and that the discrimination was against public policy "in that it tends to restrain marriage."

Secondly, other things being equal, the girls most likely to marry are the girls who come into friendly social contact with plenty of young men. Co-education, in both high school and college, is a simple and normal method of establishing such contact. The coming June crop of engagements in the graduating classes at the co-educational institutions of higher learning ought to convince even the pessimistic Dr. Bonser that, at these institutions anyway, "discontent with home life among impressionable girls" does not flourish!

VIOLETS

There's something about violets that makes me want to cry,
Yet they're the only flower I ever stop to buy.
I order them from florists to wear on holy days,
I carry sodden bunches from the city
peddler's trays.

For they make me remember (how long you have been gone!)
A girl who wore a violet dress and ran across the lawn
To walk beside you, hand in hand, to where the violets grow.
Oh, that I had known then the things that now I know!

Gone would be the parting—gone
would be the tears,
And we'd be planting violets together through the years!

Colors Shown At Autueil

A FORECAST of summer colors are those worn at Autueil. Striking are costumes in dark green of the bottle shade especially and in one or two lighter tones. These are seen in plain fabrics, also in tweeds combined with white or black and white, also in alias, plain and pin dotted in white.

Black is rather outstanding as a summer color, and is emphatic when accented with white. Black coats wear trimmings of white fox. Suits are striped in black and white or are in mixtures, and always associated with white boutonnieres, white gloves and white hat trimming is the black tailored suit.

Novelties in New French Styles

By Alice Maxwell Appo

PARIS.

GERMAINE LE COMTE darkens the evening costume by showing navy net dresses, coarse black net, and pansy lace, all in the ankle length. She also places large self flowers at waist of formal gowns and emphasizes revers and belt buckles at the back.

Polkadots in printed crepes are appearing in her evening collection, also florals and chiffon prints.

A navy velvet dress shown for day wear at this house bears out the prediction that dark and black velvets will have a vogue, the latter shown in coats and suits from Bernard, who also adds black satin to the list which includes black and colored georgettes and marocain.

Afternoon dresses of formal type have skirts within ten inches of the floor.

The suit continues, in two pieces with semi-fitted jacket. Bernard complements it with a blouse of satin or crepe de chine, lamé, faille, romain, georgette or dot embroidered black net.

Many princess coats, some with bloused backs, are presented by Bernard and flared sleeves are noticeable.

Gray Is Smart

Black and white mixtures have reinstated gray in the realm of summer colors. Gray silk frocks are ensembled with matching cloth coats, or ensembles with long coats are in plain gray silk. Gray travel coats are decidedly wearable.

The Flattery of the Fur Piece Essential to the Tailored Mode

SCARF OF ERMINE THAT IS FOLDED INSIDE THE NECKLINE OF A BLACK TAILORED COAT AND TIED IN A LOOSE KNOT WITH FLOWING ENDS

By Ann Roberts

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

IT WAS to be expected, I suppose, this army of small fur animals that has made its appearance in the ranks of the best society. The tailored suit gave the clue. It just about cries aloud for its fur piece. But as I watched the throng of fresh spring costumes pass by in a very smart place this week I was quite astonished at the firm hold which the idea had suddenly gained.

Since style gives you a chance, then, do not neglect the opportunity to have a fur piece. And, I wonder, am I becoming too awfully nagging when I plead—don't have any fur piece unless it is a really good one. Imitations will be bound to crop up. Expensive fur pieces are always imitated (this is history), but (and this is fact) they are always had style when done this way.

Better cleave to a jaunty scarf well tied than to try to approach the precincts of high fashion with only a would-be well-bred animal about your neck.

Sables High Fashion

IT seems as though, with this strictly modern exaltation of feminine charms and grace, the earth has been combed to find those tangible points of fashion that through the ages have best flattered femininity.

Sables have glorified the girls of all times, they tell us, and to-day they have taken up their heavy duty all over again. And may I add that, from all appearances, they are doing the job most successfully.

Three sable skins strung together are most alluring as a fur piece. You may have more if you don't care at all how the old income is spent, or you may have less. But of one thing you may be sure—with a sable about your throat you are set to carry the banner as a leader of fashion. It is the best fur fashion of all.

Yes, I must assure you that it is an expensive fashion. Not every one can join this sable-wearing throng, and therefore it is bound to remain indefinitely exclusive. There is some joy in that for those who can afford them.

About Marten and Fisher

THOSE skins that make the nearest approach to sables because of size and in some cases because of color are baum marten, natural or dyed, and fisher skins. They both have a perfectly good fashion stamp upon them, and if brown in any of its tones is becoming to you, then do not hesitate to have one of these.

All of these furs in what we might call the sable family can be worn with either tailored or costume suits or with dresses alone, especially with the tailored street dresses that are so good at just this time of year. They are, in other words, most versatile in their uses.

The Place For a Silver Fox

WITH a classic tailored suit you can wear a silver fox; also with one of the new silk suits or with a dress, as is the case with sables. But flatter yourself, when this rule is followed, that you are among the most smartly dressed women of the season. And, again, observe the flattery of this fashion. The fur surrounds your head with a perfect halo of softness.

Blue fox still holds high rank in this range of fashionable skins.

Some Other Animals in Fashion

SOME of the best dressed women in the world have a strict aversion to wearing anything that everyone else is wearing. For these there are several quite lovely though inexpensive fur scarfs that have been heralded by high fashion authorities as being right.

There is a Russian fox which can best be described as looking like a small gray wolf. This fur is lovely and quite perfect for those complexions that fade away into obscurity when they contact brown in any of its shades or tones.

An ermine tie—the one illustrated with this article—was worn by an extremely smart woman. It is quite narrow and flat and is arranged more like a trimming for a frock than as a pretentious fur piece. But it does constitute a most interesting finish for a coat that is otherwise too plain to be becoming.

Fur Scarfs and Their Uses

FASHION this spring gives wholehearted support to scarfs made from flat furs. These, it must be admitted, are a particular boon to those of buxom tendencies, for they tend to eliminate all puffiness and to keep the line smoothed down only to essentials.

Scarfs of galyak and flat caracul are good. These are the most expensive ones, but you can have flat kid, or lapin, or even goat and still be on the safe side of smartness. The lapin in any of its gray, beige or white tones is good.

Ermine scarfs join this classification. They are wonderful worn with black and accompanied by black hats trimmed subtly with touches of white.

These scarfs tie under the chin at one side of the throat, are thrown over the shoulder or are worn flat, sliding under a belt or allowed to swing loosely. They can also be held together at a very low pointed neckline in a sort of fichu effect.

They are, on the whole, manageable accessories and well worth the investment, for furs of this general character are never cheap.

THE SCARF OF GALYAK KNOTTED AT THE SIDE AND FORMING A CHOKER THAT IS MOST EFFECTIVE WHEN WORN WITH TAILORED CLOTHES.

SCARF OF TWO SABLE SKINS WHICH MAY BE ELABORATED TO THREE OR REDUCED TO ONE. IT IS THE SMARTEST OF NECK PIECES.

The Beauty Shop

Facts About Flabby Faces

WHEN a face or a chin begins to fall into folds and festoon effects, nearly everybody including the owner of the face thinks "Age."

And yet there are faces firm at sixty and other faces flabby at thirty. Moreover, a famous practicing beauty specialist assures us that given the right sort of care, the average face can retain clean-cut contours up to the age of seventy!

FRANCES OLIVIER

The emphasis is placed on the "right sort of care." The great majority of faces receive an absolutely wrong sort of care. And all in the name of cleanliness, good grooming, beauty culture!

Just stand by and take observations some time when your mother, auntie or chum cleanses her face. Take particular note of the contortions, the vigorous rubbing—mostly in a down direction. If soap and water are used it's ten to one that the water is piping hot.

Oh poor, poor faces, no wonder your marvelous elasticity wears out long before its time.

If you, gentle reader, want your face to have and keep its cameo contours indifinitely, then heed these words of beauty wisdom and common sense:

Wash your face up and dry it up, cream it up and lotion it up. And keep it up from within by means of constructive happy thinking!

As for the hot scourings, they are in defiance of beauty law. Warm water and a pure and agreeable soap are sufficient for the cleansing of a normal skin. Conspicuously porous skins subject to blackheads sometimes require other forms of cleanser than soap and the occasional use of hot compresses, but for a steady facial diet hot water is too relaxing in its effects upon face muscles and tissue.

As for the contortions, the screwing up of the features, in fact any of the awful faces that many people make during the cleansing operation, such grimaces are as harmful as they are unnecessary.

Let's be thorough in caring for our faces, of course, but let us try also to be kind to them. They are marvelous pieces of mechanism and can stand for an incredible amount of punishment—but not for very long.

Oh, Go to Bed

"DAD, I've decided what I'm going to be when I grow up to be a big man and finish college and everything."

"Well, son, what are you going to be?"

"Well, Dad, when I was a little tot I wanted to be a locomotive engineer, then I thought I'd rather be a policeman, and then I thought I'd like to fly across the ocean like Lindy did, but now I know what I want to be—I want to be a poor heathen."

"A poor heathen. Whatever put such an absurd idea in your head?"

"Well, Dad, I'll tell you; when I was in church last Sunday they took up a collection for the poor heathen."

"Took up a collection for the poor heathen! Oh, go to bed!"

OUR DELEGATES REPORT

THE naval delegation reports to Mr. Hoover:

HOOVER—Well, boys, sit down and tell me all about it.

STIMSON—Didn't you see it in the papers? We thought you knew all about it now.

HOOVER—I read where England agreed to sink six battleships, but I thought it was a gag.

STIMSON—No, Mr. President, it's true. Britain sinks six ships to our three.

HOOVER—But WHEN? There must be a catch in it somewhere.

STIMSON—Within the next five years. Mr. President, this naval agreement stands out as an achievement.

HOOVER—It does as soon as they sink those ships. What kind of a trip did you boys have?

STIMSON—The London weather was terrible, but we pretended we liked it.

HOOVER—Have you anything additional to report?

STIMSON—Yes. Judging by our own experience, we think Byrd's reception in June will be a flop.

HOOVER—Why?

STIMSON—Well, we rode up Lower Broadway to New York City Hall and we didn't get a scrap of confetti down our necks.

HOOVER—How about ticker tape and torn telephone books?

STIMSON—We'd have had more paper thrown at us if we wore straw hats to a ball park after Sept. 15.

HOOVER—I can't understand it. I was hoping you'd be buried under a blizzard of torn newspapers so's the street cleaners would have more work.

STIMSON—Understand, Chief, we aren't sore about it. We're glad to get back. By the way, what have Amos and Andy been doing lately?

HOOVER—Oh, Andy's been running the Treasury the same as usual, but who's Amos?

STIMSON—I mean Amos and Andy, the blackface team.

HOOVER—Don't mention anything like that. I'm having trouble enough now.

STIMSON—So I heard. What's all this about the Senate not confirming Parker because he put a red jacket on a yellow dog?

HOOVER—You've got me—I can't follow the Senate. But it seems Borah, who I never knew was a dog fancier before, is all stirred up about that red jacket on a yellow dog. Anything Red rifles Borah anyway, you know.

STIMSON—What else is doing, Chief?

HOOVER—Nothing much. They're still tinkering with the tariff.

STIMSON—Is Borah for or against that?

HOOVER—He won't know till he finds out if I'm for or against it. Here, have a fresh cigar.

STIMSON—Thanks. You know, Chief, it is quite a job getting the British to agree to sink six ships.

HOOVER—It must have tired you out, Mr. Stimson.

STIMSON—Well, I did work long hours, but I didn't mind that. What bothered me—and I couldn't get any sleep worrying about it—was I forgot to tell any one back home to feed the parrot.

HOOVER—Was it starved when you came back?

STIMSON—No, it gained three pounds. It was on that Hollywood diet.

HOOVER—By the way, Secretary Stimson, you can disregard that order I sent you last December.

STIMSON—Understand, what order was that?

HOOVER—When I asked you to change the parrot's name to something besides Old Soak. Since those Literary Digest returns came in, you can call it Old Taylor for all I care.

STIMSON—Thanks a lot, Mr. President. I was afraid I'd have to call it Clarence or Bishop.

HOOVER—You won't now, so forget about it. And I guess that's all you need to report, boys, till England sinks those six ships.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Writers of travel books advertised abroad tell of the glories of the Bouillabaisse of restaurants in Montparnasse, but to hear them tell it, it would require an adding machine and a magician to achieve it. French peasants must be amused at that exaggerated respect for an every-day dish of theirs; they learned to make it without ever suspecting that it was difficult.

KAREN HOLLIS

Bouillabaisse is hard to describe. It is something like a chowder and something like a fish stew. Ask any French housewife what she put in it, and she would tell you a little of everything. But even though she cheerfully would permit you to vary the ingredients to suit your own taste, she would be indignant if you ever tried to cook it except in individual portions in earthenware baking dishes. And she would insist on its containing clams in the shell.

The recipe that I am going to give you is a simplified one worked out by a famous French chef for American housewives. Instead of calling for a profusion of spices and herbs that the average housewife would not have on hand, it substitutes any of the commercial fish and meat sauces, which can be had in any neighborhood store. The effect is the same. This recipe makes four generous helpings.

BOUILLABAISSE

1 pound of raw fish, halibut, trout, or salmon preferred,
12 clams
1 large onion
4 tablespoons olive oil
4 medium sized potatoes
4 tomatoes
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup Worcester or other fish sauce
½ cup sherry seasoning
2 peppercorns
2 cloves garlic
4 slices stale bread
4 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

Brown the onion slightly in the olive oil, divide into four parts and put each in a small baking dish. Wash the fish and clams thoroughly, put them in the baking dishes, and add a cup of warm water to each dish. Put in a slow oven (325 degrees) and cook for twenty minutes. Add the potatoes, which have been peeled and diced, the tomatoes, lemon juice, and seasoning and continue cooking for half an hour. Then place a slice of bread on each dish, sprinkle it with paprika and a tablespoon of grated cheese and return to the oven. Increase the heat, cook for five minutes more and serve very hot in the baking dishes.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

GOLDEN DAWN

This story is based on Warner Bros. Vitaphone production of the play by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II.

SYNOPSIS

Dawn, mystery girl, is about to be dedicated by the African tribe as the mystic bride of a pagan god, amid weird rites. All night, she is to remain alone in a moonlight-drenched jungle. Shep, bully whip boss of the natives, means to further his sinister designs there. Dawn and Tom Allen, young plantation owner, are in love with one another. Tom has heard that Dawn is as white as himself. He is resolved to save her from her gloomy fate as virgin bride to the black deity. The British camp has been seized by the Germans. Tom en route to a prison camp, breaks through the jungle and gets on the very night that Dawn is to be initiated. He must save her, come what may.

INSTALLMENT TEN

Stepping backward in his fright, Pigeon narrowly escaped falling over the edge of another declivity. "I—I—we, I mean," he stammered "we was just looking. We got lost."

"Who am we?" Shep inquired.

"Why, me and—me and 'im, you know."

"Who's him?"

"This other chap," said Pigeon evasively. Then noting Shep's curiosity turning to fury, he hurriedly amended, "me and Tom. We was goin' to the new camp."

Never had Pigeon heard a laugh more expressive of genuine delight than that with which Shep greeted this information. It was several seconds before he could control his mirth sufficiently to speak.

Bully Shep perfected his plans

"Where did you leave him?" he demanded.

"Up there somewhere," answered Pigeon, his expansive gesture taking in the entire jungle.

Shep seized him and shook him. "I wants to know where," he persisted.

"It's hard for me to say just where, he's," he began. "You see, I ain't got no map and it's dark in there—"

Shep pointed upward whence Pigeon had come. "Must been up there somewhere, ain't it? Dat where you came from."

Heroically Pigeon stalled for time. "We left the canteen," he explained, "and took that new trail that goes up to the camp. We could tell where we was in the moonlight—"

"I knows," interrupted the whip man.

"But in the dark, you know Shep, you ain't able to see. Well, we come to a fork in the trail. There's a small path that goes up hill, and over here the wide one."

"Did you take de wide one?"

"It's like this, Shep—"

Shep, half mad with impatience, struck Pigeon with his open hand knocking him down. "I wants answers, you vermin, not no long time killin' talk."

"Honest, Shep," said Pigeon, "I don't know where he is."

"Wherever he is, he's goin' to wait a long while for you," Shep promised ominously.

Pausing, the whip man debated two courses. He had not counted on a meeting with Tom and naturally was resentful of his intrusion into his other plans. He didn't believe Pigeon's story that the two were en route to the new camp. He suspected that Tom was bound for the same destination as his own, probably to kidnap Dawn from the natives.

If that was Tom's plan, Shep decided that his first duty was to frustrate it. Dawn would be chained to the altar and he would be able to visit her at any later time during the night. It also would give him pleasure to report to Dawn that he had disposed of Tom for all time.

He was reminded of Pigeon, who had not yet worked up the courage to rise to his feet. Shep walked over to him, whip in hand. With a quick movement he brought the stock down heavily on the Cockney's skull. Chuckling, he turned and plunged into the underbrush. Pigeon fell forward, rolled over and lay insensible on the trail.

To the wailing strains of the pipe, Mooda led Dawn and her eight bridesmaids into the moonlighted clearing. The piper trailed obediently, now playing more softly, but always the same melancholy tune in the same unchanging beat. As the mother of Malunghu's bride, Mooda majestically undertook to officiate. She thrilled to the role of high priestess.

At an unspoken word from her, the piper swung into another melody. Rhythmically the new tune was jazz, but its whine issued in funeral march tempo, sending apprehensive shivers through Dawn. Silently the eight girls glided to appointed positions about the clearing, Dawn following Mooda into the center.

The girls danced, a mad, patternless rigadoon that, because of its seeming impromptitude, was wildly beautiful—and a little frightening. Dawn, too, was required to dance. She found it difficult to lift her feet, so leaden they seemed, but at Mooda's frown she joined half-heartedly in the ceremony. She was not required to throw herself into the ecstatic postures of the maids, since Malunghu's bride must never be without dignity. This gave her comfort.

In her loneliness and anxiety for Tom she was unable to concentrate on the ceremony, solemn as it was. She was conscious only of a wish to have it over, to be alone—away from the meddlesome Mooda. She did not fear being alone in the jungle throughout the night. Rather, she welcomed the solitude. Somehow it promised freedom—and she had been without freedom since first she was advised that she was to be sacrificed to the hateful god of her people.

The maids persisted in their crazy capering until it seemed they must fall exhausted. Dawn shuffled her feet mechanically, her eyes on Mooda, hopeful that she would end the ridiculous gyrations. Soon, at Mooda's silent order, the attendants retired, in groups of four, to either side of the clearing. Dawn remaining where she was. The piper retreated and sat himself cross-legged on the ground.

Mooda joined Dawn. "Mooda know what you think about," the black woman muttered on the pretext of instructing Dawn in the ceremony, "but Mooda say forget. Remember only what Mooda tell you."

Dawn nodded in obedience.

"When you're young," Mooda began in awed measured tones, addressing the moon, "then you love and you fly to the sky with the man you think is God. Ah, but the man that was God lets you go—and you fall—and you think dat dere's no God at all."

Mooda then began a chant. The piper discarded his reed and began slowly to beat battered cymbals. The girls, with low tread, marched toward Dawn and Mooda as the latter intoned:

"Come now, O maids of Malunghu,
We make Dawn a daughter of the moon,
Sister of the stars and bride of
The great god Malunghu."

Continuing her doleful anthem Mooda crossed to where the piper sat. She drew a scarf from about her neck and with it blindfolded him. When she had finished incantation, the piper struck his cymbals together resoundingly and raised his quavering voice in Malunghu Thabu, the song that proclaimed Dawn the god's chattel.

The maid's words formed for Dawn a death pronouncement.

"Malunghu, she waits for you" (he sang)
"Who'll tell the maiden what she is to do
When she becomes Thabu?"

In the words of the chorus, sung by eight maids, Dawn found disheartening warning that to see Tom again would be dangerous. It meant death to both, the song reminded her. Tauntingly, tormentingly, it seemed to Dawn, the attendants sang:

"Malunghu Thabu,
That mean that you
Have given all you love to Malunghu.
Jealous god above
Must have his love
A maiden pure and tender as a dove.
When he wants to woo you, woo you, woo you,
No man dare be a lover to you, to you.
Be to Malunghu forever true,
You are eternally
Thabu!"

Repeating the hateful chorus, the maids circled about her, removing her outer garments one by one. Next they chained her to the ground. The chains were of sufficient length to permit her to move within a limited area and worked no hardship on her, but it meant that she was to be held prisoner of the moon, next to naked, throughout the night. When morning came she would be there, cleansed by the beams of the moon and worthy of the savage worship of the jungle blacks.

"INTERFERENCE" OF ARMIES HIT

SHANGHAI, May 10.—UP—Minister of Finance T. V. Soong, issued a statement today attacking the interference of the so-called northern armies under Gov. Yen Hsi-Shan with Chinese financial obligations.

"If the national government needs any cause for declaring war on the militarists," the statement as reported by the Kuomin agency said, "it has sufficient cause in that it is no longer willing to pour out the people's cash to pay blackmail."

TROOPS ENGAGE IN RIVER BALLTE

TIEENTSIN, China, May 10.—UP—Serious fighting broke out early today on the Haiho river, 15 miles below Tientsin.

Incoming steamers from Shanghai and Japan were halted and outgoing vessels returned here. The United States steamer Tulsa was moored here awaiting orders and reports, and a Japanese destroyer had been summoned from Korea.

The cause of the fighting was not definitely established in advices received here, but it was said that military guards were battling more than 1000 bandits and that a part of the regular military had bolted because they had not been paid recently. One report said a British ship was attacked and a foreigner and several others were wounded.

The fighting started at midnight Friday and continued for hours. Officials would not promise to clear the river for traffic before tomorrow. The boat Tencho Maru, on which several Americans, including Miles W. Vaughn, far-eastern manager of the United Press, Mrs. Vaughn and Mrs. D. C. Bess, wife of the manager of the Peiping bureau of the United Press, were enroute to Darien, was forced to turn back to Tientsin.

USE OF BOYCOTT BY OWNERS CHARGED

BMBAY, May 10.—UP—Charges that Bombay mill owners were utilizing the Indian boycott of foreign-made cloth to their own advantage in profiteering were published today in the Evening News of India.

Khaddarwn or homespun, cannot be obtained, the Evening News said, and Indian mill stocks are diminishing rapidly. Taking advantage of the situation, the News said, the Bombay mills have raised their prices.

The newspaper maintained the increases were not justified, and added that if they persisted, the mill owners would alienate those persons who hitherto have supported them.

In addition, the Evening News said, it is probable that the increases will enable Japan to overcome the handicap of the protective duty gradually, and again flood India with Japanese goods.

The report that Mahatma Gandhi, imprisoned leader of the passive resistance campaign, had been transferred from his quarters in the Yeroda jail at Poona to the military sanitarium at Purhandhar was denied today. It was said that the report was premature.

TROOPS GUARD TEXAS CITY IN RIOT

rush for the basement of the building, which resulted in the firing of the courthouse.

"The mob was led by some woman I've never seen around town," said Mary Mitchell, employed in a drug store across the street from the courthouse. "But for the most part, young men and even boys seeemed to be the ones who stirred up all the real trouble."

The riot began when Hughes was taken from his cell to the county courthouse. Mrs. Farlow, his alleged victim, was taken into the room on a stretcher. A clamor arose outside. There were shouts and a brick crashed through the window.

Officers abandoned thought of a trial at once. Hughes was then taken to a vault in the building, and there was the click of the tumbler lock. He died there from suffocation. Protected from the violence which surrounded him, he slowly exhausted the air necessary to life.

Judges Escape

Meanwhile the shouts outside increased to a roar. Some one had applied a torch to the courthouse. Wisps of smoke crept up. Judge R. M.Carter, who was to have heard the trial, barely escaped as flames crept upward, fed by gasoline. He cried out against the mob, but his voice was drowned.

Firemen arrived. They were held back. Their hose lines were cut. The court yard became a scene of pitched battles, in the center of which crackling flames ate their way through the ounty court house building.

Troops were ordered from Dallas. When the arrived the rioters had quieted down and the court building was reduced to blackene walls, damaged virtually beyond reclaim.

When the soldiers started to march to the courthouse where Hughes' fate had been sealed, the lynchers met them with defiance. There was a struggle. A gun barked, then others. Several soldiers and civilians were wounded. The small detachment of state troops were driven back. More were ordered to the city from Dallas, some 80 miles away.

Mob Routs Guard

The shouts of the mob, the rattle of an occasional shot and the stamping of feet sent terror into the homes of Sherman citizens. At one time 700 persons were in the party bent on avenging itself against the negroes.

They went to the courthouse and threw open the blackened door. Hughes was there, prone on the floor between shelved records of legal affairs. He was dead.

The mob chained his body and dragged it through the streets. They found a cottonwood tree and hanged their victim to its branches, milling about in anger. The moon was up and cast crooked shadows on the ground.

The mob was unappeased. They raced off to the negro section, where five houses were burned. The negroes fled to the open country, concealing themslves in wayside bushes.

At last the soldiers brought order to the city. They fired but few shots. Their steel jacketed bullets were answered with leaden missles.

Sherman, a city with 16,000 was left to count the cost, while the soldiers remained against any renewal of the outbreak.

Murder, Treason

"The act of the mob in firing upon the soldiers, was treasonable" Governor Moody said.

"The wanton destruction of property by the mob was a crime in its most reckless form. The rule of the mob is a rule of crime, and a group of men committing a crime in a body and burning property as just as much criminals and more cowardly than a single individual that commits a crime.

"It is an evil day when any group of persons combine to override the law and to add to their crimes of murder and arson, the offense of firing on soldiers of their state and country."

Some of the negroes had returned to their homes. Few of them, however, were seen on the streets, and porters of hotels in most cases did not report for work.

None of the injuries were believed fatal. John Melton, a civilian of Sherman, was most seriously hurt, when a rioters bullet lodged in his neck. The injuries to the soldiers were, for the most part, caused by stones and clubs.

Letters Taken From Johnson Desk By Thief

WASHINGTON, May 10.—UP—Political letters, containing the most intimate facts about public officials in Washington ,as written by the fluent pen of Senator Hiram Johnson to his friends back home in California, were surreptitiously read by some intruder who broke into his office in the capitol early today.

As this marked the fourth rifling of a senator's office, within a week it created a major crime problem for capitol police and local detectives.

All they could develop was that it was a "professional job." There were no evidence the windows had been raised, so it was deducted entry must have been by a pass key. Drawers in Johnson's private desk were pulled out. His complicated card index letter file had obviously been scrutinized carefully, with particular attention to his private correspondence.

A set of private letters on the passing political situation in Washington were left on top of the file case.

A cabinet nearby had been jimmied, apparently by one who well knew how.

The intruder wasted no time with John's bulky office correspondence, containing the routine letters a senator writes to his constituents. He manifestly knew where things were that even Johnson did not know until his file clerk told him.

Burglar Used Gloves

Detectives said they found evidence that the burglar used gloves to avoid tell-tale fingerprints.

Throughout this session of congress there has been a feeling of uneasiness among senators. During the hot prohibition arguments last winter, many senators complained they were being trailed. Others reported their offices had been ransacked. Senator Borah said his office was being watched, and Senator Wheeler complained his files had been searched.

It also was learned today ,that Borah recently has seen a letter tending to substantiate his allegations that his office was watched during the prohibition discussion last winter. The letter is said to have been addressed to a member of the house, and said the man who "went through Borah's office is now in prohibition service in St. Louis." The author of the letter is understood to be in the government service.

At the same time it developed that the office of Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, who is abroad, also had been reported rifled recently.

Liquor Stolen

Another senator reported privately a bottle of liquor had been sto'en from his desk. Apparently it had been taken by a janitor, it was said.

The janitor was one of the first questioned by detectives investigating the Johnson case. He said he left the office at 12:30 a. m. and everything was in good order. He locked the door behind him.

Within the week, Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, advised the senate that his office had been searched in the night. At the same time, eSnators Moot, Republican, Utah, and Brock, Democrat, Tennessee, also intimated their offices had been searched. Smoot indicated the intruder had stolen only a pen.

RICHFIELD GAS USED ON NEW RECORD TRIP

OAKLAND, May 10.—High speed with utter safety over the perfected highways of California—an idea fostered by the forward-looking National Automobile club—was recently demonstrated by the heavy-footed Ralph Hepburn, famous race and stunt driver, when he set a series of brand new records with a Richfield powered Studebaker Commander "8" sedan between Oakland and the Mexican border and return.

The primary record was this:

The total round trip loop of 1155 miles was covered in 22 hours and 17 minutes of elapsed time.

Record Run

Probably more sensational, it was believed by those who just finished checking Hepburn's time, was the fact that he made the run from Oakland to Los Angeles, officially checked in and out by Western Union, in 6 hours and 54 minutes.

Officials of the National Automobile club, under whose auspices the run was made, announced here today that Hepburn's car was filled up with Richfield-Ethyl gasoline for the start and refilled at his few stops with that same gasoline exclusively. Hepburn, at the finish of his run, explained that he consistently has used nothing but Richfield for his series of thrilling record-breaking speed and power stunts with stock Studebakers and Erskines.

James D. McClure, National Automobile Club, acted as relief pilot. "Doug" Montell of the Oakland Tribune staff was official observer.

Car Checked

On the night of the run, the car was checked out, Western Union, from Oakland at 9:59 o'clock. The next morning at 4:55 o'clock it was checked in at the Western Union office, Los Angeles. It arrived at the Tiajuana, Mexico line at 8:03 a. m. At 8:39 it left Tiajuana for the return and arrived back in Oakland that evening precisely at 8:16 o'clock.

Declaring that this high speed run was one not to encourage reckless driving but to discourage it and, at the same time, to foster safer inter-city driving at what will be a faster average speed in the near future, McClure, the National Automobile company representative today said:

"Congestion breeds accidents and the modern trend is for the re-routing of main highways to pass by all congested areas. The speed set by Hepburn with his Richfield-powered motor car was one which, considering the driver, the car, and general conditions of routing, was not at all reckless. We believe that such speed—with safety—may well be considered an average which will be more or less usual on the right highways within five years.

"We believe, too, that when proper routings come and present highway plans are consummated, we shall see higher legal speeds with a much lowered ratio of wrecks or fatalities. Thus both time and life—considered our most precious possessions—will be saved."

FLOOD THREATS IN WIND STORMS

storm, John Chappel and his wife remained at the bedside last night. Chappel and the son, Jim Chappel, 25, were killed. A neighbor, Mrs. E Flinn Hodges was also killed. The mother of the youth was near death in a Fort Smith, Ark., hospital. Other members of the family escaped by seeking refuge in a nearby storm cellar.

A tornado that cut through the Osage hills killed Mrs. O. L. Downs. An unidentified man was killed by lightning at Lawton.

Woman Dies

Mrs. James Elms, 74, died today from injuries received last night when a twister destroyed the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clyde Howell, between Arpelar and Scipio. Six other persons were injured in that vicinity. Fred Lackey, 17, was carried 75 yards by the wind and was seriously injured. Rain and hail followed the tornadoes, doing great damage to peach crops.

A cyclone early today ripped roofs from college buildings at Southeastern Teachers' College and the Oklahoma Presbyterian College at Durant. Damage was estimated at $10,000. None were injured. More than 100 women students were drenched by rain when the roofs were blown away.

Rivers in most sections of the state, including the flat bed rivers of the arid western sections rose rapidly tonight. The Cimarron and Canadian rivers in the west, and the Caney, Arkansas and Neosho in the northeast, rose bank nfull. The Caney spilled over its banks near Bartlesville. Clearing skies gave relief to residents along the Red river, which was rising rapidly.

The swift regularity of the offenses is expected now to result in a thorough investigation, and perhaps a closer watch upon the offices of senators. Acting Chairman Hale of the senate rules committee said he would immediately order more men detailed to the capitol detective force.

Suit Filed In Death Of Two In Auto Crash

MARTINEZ, May 10.—Charging Joseph Burch with negligent driving suit for $100,000 for the death of his two sons, has been filed here by H. D. Landice. Trial will open in the court of Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie next Tuesday.

According to the complaint, the two boys, Edwin, 18 and Hubert 29, were killed when their motorcycle collided with a car driven by Burch.

RAGS WANTED

FRENCH FLEET PREPARES FOR MANEUVERS

ALGIER, May 10.—UP—The fighting fleet of France lay in the shadows of African coastal hills tonight, prepared for the most extensive naval maneuvers ever witnessed in the Mediterranean.

The sixty-six modern ships of destruction which passed in review before President Gaston Doumergue late today will start maneuvers tomorrow opposite the "toe" of Italy, where the great armadas of history roamed in past centuries.

There was nothing to recall the ancient armadas in the late afternoon parade of steel shells—their decks stripped and their rails crowded by sun-tanned sailors—and of modern fighting planes off Algiers. The long line of warcraft was stretched at spaced intervals across the water when President Doumergue and his staff boarded the cruiser Duquesne and steamed out beyond the breakwater beneath the eyes of 100,000 natives watching from the hillsides along the shore.

Squadron of Planes

Far out from the harbor five dark hulls were moving, swinging in wide circles and advancing with steady, machine-like precision toward the Duquesne. The battleships Bretagne and Paris, and the cruisers Mulhouse and Colbert, and the aircraft carrier Bearn, forged near the presidential reviewing craft, and then the Bretagne shot forward between the Duquesne and the Province, which rode the glistening water opposite. Overhead the first of eight squadrons of airplanes and seaplanes rushed low and fast, their motors drumming as pilots executed unique formations.

The Bretagne's gun fired a presidential salute, her flags were dipped and the crew six times raised the cheer "Vive la Republique."

Warcraft Follow

The other warcraft followed the lead of the cruisers, until more than 100,000 tons of fighting steel developed to the peak of post-war efficiency had passed in the stately procession. There were 23 submarines in the fleet, but the greatest admiration was aroused by the fastest warcraft in the world—the cruisers Suffren, Colbert and Duquesne, and the destroyer Verdun, holder of the world speed records, and the most mobile and deadly vessel in action ever seen in the Mediterranean.
